HARDING IS PRESIDENT; PROSPERITY DAWNS

NEW ORDER UNDER WAY; RETURN TO NORMALCY IS SEEN

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
WASHINGTON, March 4.—Inaugurated the twenty-ninth President of the United States today, Warren G. Harding, chosen by an overwhelming majority of the people, invoked the advent of an "era of good feeling," a return to "normalcy" and the reputation of former President Wilson's effort to commit the nation to the League of Nations covenant and other entanglement in European affairs.

Mr. Wilson did not hear the knell of American isolationism, the doctrine of internationalism sounded by his successor. For the first time in a century the outgoing President did not witness the installation of the incoming executive. Mr. Wilson, with Mr. Harding from the White House to the Capitol and occupied the President's room of the Executive mansion, but just as the inaugural procession was about to form, he disappeared from participation feeling unequal to the exertion. He left the Capitol before the inauguration ceremony began.

ANOTHER INNOVATION.
Another innovation was the appearance of President Harding before the Senate immediately after the inauguration, to present in person his nominations for the Cabinet. After reading the list to the Senate and commanding his appointees to their approval the President withdrew and the nominations shortly afterward were confirmed.

For the first time the delivery of the inaugural address was something more than a formality for the word of a speech pronounced by the President, by the sound of the voice, by the 35,000 people massed BID ADIEU TO WILSON. Ends Eight Storm-Tossed Years.

Man Who Helped Make World History Private Citizen Once Again.

Retiring President and Successor Visit the Senate Together.

(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)
WASHINGTON, March 4.—Eight storm-tossed years in the Presidency, filled with moments and scenes that will live forever in human history, ended today for Woodrow Wilson, "just plain Woodrow Wilson now," as he smilingly asserted.
Under his own roof again as a private citizen, he rested tonight with his burdens of state transferred to other shoulders and the shouting and tumult of public place behind him. And through a day that had taxed his broken physical powers greatly, he came smilingly with no hint of regret in his retirement.
There was but one incident when that cheerful mood seemed to fail. Mr. Wilson had been telling Senator Knox that he would not witness the inauguration of Vice-President Coolidge as he doubted his ability to negotiate the few steps he must climb.
"The Senate has thrown me down," he said to the Pennsylvania Senator, in reference to battles of the past, and the peace treaty, "but I am not going to fall down."

COOL TO LODGE.
A moment later some one called his attention to the fact that Senator Lodge had arrived as head of the joint committee to inform the President that the sixty-sixth Congress stood ready for adjournment.

Mr. Wilson turned toward the man who led the fight against the treaty. His face lost its smile as he listened to the Senator's formal report and the words "I am not going to fall down" came back to his mind. "I have no further communication to make. I appreciate your courtesy. Good morning."

Mr. Wilson's share in the ceremonies remained in doubt to the last. It was not until he had finished the business that called him to the Capitol that he made known his yielding to the entreaties of his physician and Mrs. Wilson to spare himself the ordeal his physical condition would make of adherence to precedent.

From the moment he emerged from the White House to the Capitol, Mr. Wilson was shown up most courteously by Mr. Harding. After he had stepped in and they rode side by side, neither in court-dress nor in military uniform, they rode to the Capitol and greeted them.

AT THE CAPITOL, the car drew up first at the Senate wing entrance. Mr. Harding and others in the car, except Mr. Wilson, alighted and here the crowd was evidently it had been prearranged that there should be no public comparison to be drawn between the big strong CEREMONIES IN DETAIL. President Harding's First Day a Busy One; Party for Home Folks.

(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)
WASHINGTON, March 4.—The reins of Presidential authority passed from Woodrow Wilson to Warren G. Harding today in an inaugural ceremony at once the simplest and most dramatic of a generation.

The drama centered about the retirement of Woodrow Wilson. Inauguration almost to the last that he would carry out a retiring President's customary part in the ceremony. Mr. Wilson finally yielded to the warning of his physician that he might endanger his life, and accompanied his successor only to the Capitol.

As he descended from the White House portico to enter the waiting automobile, secret service men placed his feet on each descending step; when he left the car to enter the Capitol, he was practically lifted up a short flight of steps by an attendant, and, although he walked alone with the aid of a cane to the President's room, he told Senator Knox, chairman of the Congress-

WHITE HOUSE DOORS OPENED.

(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)
WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Harding, visiting the White House executive offices today for the first time, issued orders for the opening of the gates to the White House grounds, closed since the severance of relations with Germany in 1917. Another order was for the opening of the executive mansion to visitors, resumption of the system in effect before the war.

The gates were swung open in accordance with the Chief Executive's orders and many from the crowds that had waited behind the high iron fence including the grounds troops across the White House lawn.

POLICY OF SANITY NOTE SOUNDED BY CHIEF EXECUTIVE

BY HARRY CARL.
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
WASHINGTON, March 4.—Today's great drama was a drama of two men.

It was a country editor from a little town in Ohio who stood with head bared to the crisp March sunshine and repeated the oath that made him the most powerful leader in the world—who stepped perhaps into the most powerful position in world affairs that any man has ever occupied.

The other was a broken man huddled back in the cushions of a limousine that was taking him back to private life. Woodrow Wilson had cast off his cloak of nettles. Yesterday his power was known in the far islands of the sea and great fleets of war stood waiting to do his bidding. This afternoon he had no responsibilities beyond the income tax collector and the butcher's bill.

HARDING WARNS EUROPEAN DIPLOMACY.

Six months ago no one in Europe ever heard of Warren G. Harding. Today the world held its breath while, his gray head wagging with earnestness and his honest big fist gesturing with big meaning, he told intriguing European diplomacy where to head in at. It was a speech reminiscent of George Washington's farewell address, and there was nothing in it calculated to cheer the foreign offices of Europe which have been snickering behind their hands at the way they "put it over" on America.

The inaugural ceremony was in two parts—in the Senate chamber, where the new Senators and the Vice-President were sworn into office, and out on the Capitol steps, where the President took the oath in the presence of a concourse of people—a crowd so enormous that it covered fifty acres or more, yet so still that it was like a vast solitude.

NO ATTEMPT AT DRAMA IN ADDRESS.

An attempt was made to stage something deliberately solemn and impressive in the Senate chamber, with the result that at times it bordered perilously on the ridiculous. No attempt was made at drama in the ceremony on the steps of the Capitol, with the result that it was so wonderfully dramatic that your heart almost stopped and tears came to the eyes of veteran Washington correspondents.

To me it is a very healthy and reassuring sign that a Congress made up of good, sane, level-headed Americans can turn themselves into play actors.

It took more political pull to get into the Capitol this morning than to get to be ambassador to the court of St. James. It was fenced off by cordons of police and marines with fixed bayonets. If your pass looked all right you were advanced to one of the galleries, from which point of vantage you looked down into the sashem here where the statesmen were trying to look as though they were not conscious of the galleries at all.

FAREWELL SPEECHES MADE IN SENATE.

Some of the Senators began making farewell speeches in tribute to some of the retiring members. One of those who goes out is dear old Senator Thomas of Colorado. He and Alice Roosevelt Longworth were called the weather vane of the Senate. Every time she sits in the gallery you can know something good is going to happen. Every time Senator Thomas takes off his toupee it is a sign hot weather is coming. Also he has been one of the finest and ablest men in the Senate, and they told him so this morning.

Senator Wadsworth of New York got up with the usual funeral voice they use on such occasions to make a farewell speech about Senator Chamberlain, the head of the Committee on Military Affairs in the Democratic days. In the midst of it, it was discovered in a panic that Senator Chamberlain was absent, so Mr. Wadsworth had to stall a little, while a page rushed out and found the object of the kind words.

They hurried him in and sat him down to hear the rest of it. He did his level best to look as though he didn't have an idea what they were bringing him in for.

MR. HUGHES COMES SHYLY IN.

Presently Mr. Hughes, the new Secretary of State, came shyly in with the new Attorney-General, Mr. Daugherty. To tell the truth, they were very much embarrassed at being the center of attention and Judge Hughes kept looking wildly around as though he would like to cut and run for it. Presently they were reinforced by Herbert Hoover, Will Hays and others of the new Cabinet, and found security in numbers.

On the other side of the Senate chamber were the seats set aside for the members of the Wilson Cabinet. They stood vacant for a long time. Josephus Daniels finally ventured in, sat down and then nervously sneaked out again. Finally they all got in. Atty-Gen. Palmer scowled on the whole proceeding as though he wished it to be distinctly understood that the Republican party was none of his doings and he declined to be held responsible.

MRS. HARDING, NEW FIRST LADY, ENTERS.

Then something happened that made the crowd forget all about cabinets. Mrs. Harding came in. The new first lady of the land! She had a gorgeous gown and a corks black picture hat with a plume that stood straight up, and her figure was like a West Point cadet's. The crowd did not seem to faze her in the least and she had a grand time pointing out the different actors and so on. She was on the front row of the Senators' private

MARSHALL MAKES ADIEUX.

Vice-President in Senate Speech Voices Plea for Old-Time Faith.

(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)
WASHINGTON, March 4.—Following is the text of the address of Vice-President Marshall on his retirement from office: "Very shortly I will have ended my official life as the constitutional presiding officer of this body. That moment, when it arrives, will not mark my demotion into the ranks of the average American citizen, for I never rose above them. I sprang from the loins of men who helped to lay the foundations of this republic. At my birth my father died upon my baby brow the mantle of a free-born American. In my youth I was taught that I owed it worthily, as price of a state, not to elect a corrupt man to royal coronet."

"I have failed but I have tried to keep the faith. I have never believed that, so far as the principles of civil government are concerned, the pillars of Hercules stand upon the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. To my mind there is no beyond. The forms under which we live are but a means to the end of liberty and the preservation of the republic. Changing conditions, but the underlying idea does not, for truth is unchanging and eternal. What we do when the morning stars are together will be so when the stars of the Apocalypse are shining. We must not let the much of that idea: A government dedicated to the inalienable rights of man to liberty and to the pursuit of happiness can find its highest accomplishment only in respect to the duty-determined course above the ambition of passions."

"The life is more than meat and the body more than raiment. It is of minor importance who holds the reins of power. It is of greater importance that the people be ruled by the best. The life is more than meat and the body more than raiment. It is of minor importance who holds the reins of power. It is of greater importance that the people be ruled by the best."

Coolidge in Address Says Body is Stronghold of Government.

(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)
WASHINGTON, March 4.—Following is the full text of the inaugural address of Vice-President Coolidge: "Five generations ago there was a small group of men who declared and proclaimed in the American Constitution that they recognized a League of Nations. They were the people of this nation a new relationship between man and man, which they declared and proclaimed in the American Constitution. They were the people of this nation a new relationship between man and man, which they declared and proclaimed in the American Constitution."

"The great object for us to seek here, for the Constitution identifies the Vice-Presidency with the Presidency, and it was intended by the fathers, the citadel of liberty. Whatever its faults, whatever its human imperfections, there is no legislative body in all history that has used its powers with more wisdom and discretion, more uniformity for the execution of the public will, or more in harmony with the spirit of the authority of the people, which has created it, than the United States Senate."

ADDRESS PLEASES ALL.

Inaugural Speech Elicits Praise from Friend and Foe Alike in Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Harding's inaugural address elicited praise from friend and foe alike in Congress. It delighted the Republicans, and the Democrats joined them in lauding it. There was hardly a note of criticism in any quarter. The "irreconcilable" opponents of the League of Nations were particularly elated at Mr. Harding's utterances on foreign policy.

Senator Johnson of California, one of Mr. Harding's bitterest rivals for the Presidency before the Chicago convention, was one of the first to praise the address. "I am delighted," said Senator Johnson, "with President Harding's reaffirmation of our nation-old policy and with his emphatic words concerning old-world entanglements. His is recognition of the solemn reality of the situation and the mandate of the people. This is the end of the League of Nations."

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who led the fight in behalf of the treaty in behalf of the Senate, paraphrased one of Lincoln's expressions to present his views on Mr. Harding's speech: "For those who like that kind of speech, this is exactly the kind of a speech they will like," he said.

Manchester Press Says Wilson Failed Doing Noble Work

(BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
MANCHESTER (Eng.), March 4.—The Manchester Guardian, commenting editorially on the change in the Presidency of the United States, said today: "Mr. Wilson leaves the White House today a failure in the world's sight, but still a man who failed while trying to do a noble thing at a time when most of those about him were bent on success in doing somewhat base things."

"A thrill of joy and pride such as never came again went through the huge British Army in France on the day when the news spread that Germany had sued for peace on the basis of Mr. Wilson's famous fourteen points. That was the victory for which our armies had fought. In the fourteen points the one honest attempt was made to turn into action the eloquence which had drawn hundreds of thousands of simple, enthusiastic persons to die willingly for the ideals that it held up before them."

At the left, top, is shown President Harding's sister, Miss Abigail Harding, one of the most popular teachers in the Marion High School. Miss Harding teaches English. Beside her is a picture of the other sister of the President, Mrs. Charity Remsburg, who lives in Santa Ana, Cal. Mrs. Remsburg, like other members of his family, is a teacher. Her daughter, Nell Marie, also witnessed the inauguration. Below, to the left, are seen Phoebe and John Dickerson, great-grandmother and great-grandfather of Mr. Harding. They were among the builders of the great State where their distinguished descendant got his first home. Next to them is a picture of George D. Harding, great-grandfather of the President, who, born in 1790, in the first year of the Constitution, lived until 1860. President Harding was fortunate in having Phoebe Harding for his mother, as he tells everyone. She was a woman whose good works were known to all. President Harding, when he received the news that he would be the next President, said to his father, with tears in his eyes: "I would give anything if mother had lived to have seen this day." Very few American fathers have had the privilege that came to Dr. George Tryon Harding, Sr., when he saw the induction of his son as Chief Magistrate of the nation. Needless to say, the doctor, Big Brother Warren would tell him, on the other hand, that he is very proud of the medical achievements of his younger brother, who has won his spurs in his chosen profession. Below, to the left, is a cut of Great-Grandmother Harding, who had a smile on her lips as she knew what was going to happen in Washington on the fourth of March, 1921. Grandfather Harding, who comes next, had a deeply serious nature, as shown by the grave look on his face. Perhaps he was looking into the future enough to see the problems that would confront his grandson when he assumed the Presidential office. He took a keen interest in political matters, according to family tradition, and was a firm believer in the virtues of the American Constitution, a trait which he has handed on to his distinguished grandson. Lastly is shown Grandmother Harding, who always took great pride in her grandson, Warren, and predicted when he was a baby that he would "some day be President of the United States."

On the same row with her, Mrs. Coolidge and her two young sons. She is an attractive looking woman with an infectious smile. The front row of the other half of gallery stood vacant. These seats were reserved for the President and the Vice-President. All during the ceremony, the President and the Vice-President stood side by side, looking down at the floor. Once some of the Harding family sat down there by mistake and were promptly thrown out by the ushers.

Then the girls got another thrill. Lillian Russell thrills. There's Mrs. Wilson, said someone, and a thousand glances were turned to her. She was wearing a million-dollar fur coat. She took her seat in the row reserved for the Vice-President, next to Mrs. Marshall.

"Look! she isn't speaking to Mr. Harding," was the bulletin that flashed through the galleries in their excitement.

As a matter of fact the "Mrs. Wilson" who, some time ago, was the wife of the President, was Lillian Russell, now the wife of a publisher. But she did very much as a pinch hitter for the President's wife and the galleries were satisfied. Wilson remained at the White House.

Presently the Senate was informed of the House of Representatives coming. That brought a new thrill, for among the new members Alice Robertson, the newly elected woman "Congresswoman" from Oklahoma. She is a quiet, motherly-looking old soul with a capable manner. She sat with her hands folded in her lap and smiled benignly upon the proceedings.

STATEMEN SEE WILSON. Then there came a painful wait. Wherever there was an anti-war President Wilson was signing last bills, so the statesmen sat in their chairs and stared at the clock. WILSON IS JOCLAR.

As Senator Lodge bowed and retired, the President said with a smile, "Well, I guess I had better scoot along." He struggled weakly to his feet and was helped into the White House car. The driver threw the seats around and in another second Woodrow Wilson had passed out of public life, leaving his career for posterity to examine and estimate. Perhaps the best verdict upon Wilson was passed several hundred years before he was born when Lord Bacon wrote in an essay, "There are those who understand matters but not men."

The Republican members of the committee were Uncle Joe Cannon and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. That was a drama in itself and a cruel one that Senator Lodge, the most bitter enemy of Woodrow Wilson—the Senator whom Wilson had openly threatened to crush and who in turn had broken Wilson's power and wrecked his career—should be sent to ask if he were ready for the guillotine knife to descend.

It had been a dramatic and a bitter day already for Mr. Wilson. A short time before this the big White House limousine had drawn up at the Senate wing and the President, who had been helped to the sidewalk, had made his way slowly down the corridor to the President's room. The Mayor of Washington stepped to greet him. The President hung his head and came in his left side dragging and inert. The Mayor of Washington stepped to greet him. The President hung his head and came in his left side dragging and inert. The Mayor of Washington stepped to greet him. The President hung his head and came in his left side dragging and inert.

CABINET GREETED HIM. His Cabinet officers and several other friends were there to greet him. One of those in the room was Senator Harding, who in a few minutes would be President. They spoke to each other cordially, almost with affection as Mr. Harding helped Mr. Wilson off with his overcoat. The contrast between the vigorous tramp of the incoming President and the wrecked figure of Wilson was rather pathetic.

Someone asked Mr. Wilson if he would care to view the inaugural ceremony. He said he would not. He said he did not feel equal to the capital steps. He thanked them, but said he did not feel equal to the capital steps. He thanked them, but said he did not feel equal to the capital steps.

LODGE SPEAKS HIS PIECE. This committee begs to inform you," said Senator Lodge, "that the two houses have completed their work and are prepared to receive any further communications from you."

The President stiffened a little and a grim shadow of the old came into his eyes. He was replied, "I have no further com-

Mr. Marshall's speech was the only simple and natural and effective thing that happened in the Senate chamber, and to say that it made a hit is stating the case mildly.

That ended the doings in the Senate. The scene of the drama then shifted to the steps of the Capitol. AT MAIN ENTRANCE. A large platform had been erected across the steps of the main entrance. The speakers' stand had been connected with an electric machine which so multiplied the sound that a phonograph record played on an ordinary machine could be heard by everyone of the vast throng. The space immediately in front of the speaker had been roped off and was guarded by marines. At one side of this little pen was a long line of invalid chairs—the wounded war veterans invited to a place of honor. The crowd had been waiting a long time when there came a shrill at the top of the stairs. Mrs. Harding came down, looking on the arm of a military aide. She looked weary and straight and pleasantly excited.

MRS. HARDING HAS CHARM. I thought she carried off the situation with more charm than any other woman I ever saw in such trying circumstances. She came to the edge of the rail and caught her breath in one long sigh as though to say, "I am here." Then she turned to the crowd and bowed and a great roar of applause went up. The members of the Cavalry escort flashed to "Present." The marine guards' rifles snapped forward and the great crowd stood unmoved. As the last notes died the President of the United States began to speak.

A REMARKABLE SPEECH. The breathless world that has been standing in miserable waiting to learn what it has to hope for and what it has to fear found out in short order.

It was a remarkable speech. Not remarkable for rhetorical flights but for plain, vigorous, frank, straightforward talk that cracked you right between the eyes.

It will set a new standard for diplomacy. It will ring through the mists and equivocations of European evasiveness. There was no waving the bloody shirt. But he told them in plain, honest terms that we have no intention of being mired up in any super-government or in any European alliance; that we intend to do what is right and just to the best of our ability; but we are going to be guided by our own consciences and not by European interpretation of our conscience.

WORD TO EUROPE. The premiers of Europe who have been smirking in satisfaction over the way they barked Mr. Wilson's name, and who had said that they found out what was in very plain terms.

And so did a lot of other people. As he finished his speech the President went at once to the Senate chamber and went into executive session. Even while the

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.) DAYTON (O.) March 4.—Former Gov. James M. Cox's newspaper, The News, editorially says today, in comment upon the inauguration of Warren G. Harding as President, "There is something solemnly impressive about the inauguration of a new President. Its underlying significance is the deep-rooted respect held by the great mass of the people for our institutions of government. The Presidency inspires the ambitions of man and the intensive efforts of political parties, and yet, when the mandate is rendered at the polls, there is general acquiescence in the result."

"In contemplation of the solemn ceremonial at the seat of our government today, the asperities of the campaign are forgotten. People of all classes and creeds accept the formal induction into office of the new President as the constitutional consummation of the public will as expressed November 2. Warren G. Harding is now President of the United States. He will claim the support of all patriotic citizens."

SHORTBRIDGE MISTAKEN FOR WOODROW WILSON. INAUGURAL CROWDS FOOLED BY RESEMBLANCE OF SENATOR TO EX-PRESIDENT.

(REUTERS DISPATCH.) WASHINGTON, March 4.—Senator Shortbridge of California was the most talked-about Senator in Washington today. In fact, for a while he attracted about as much attention as President Harding himself. It all came about naturally enough, when the vast and eager crowd lost all track of the retiring President, Woodrow Wilson. They had seen him, they had seen the Capitol, they had seen the President-elect Harding, and the Senators and other distinguished guests standing together at the east front of the Capitol in advance of the arrival of President Harding and the chief justices of the Supreme Court, who was to administer the oath.

At one side of the stand a number of Senators stood together. Near the center stood Vice-President Coolidge and former Vice-President Marshall. Suddenly between the group of Senators a tall, spare figure, silk-hatted and frock-coated, appeared. There was a stir in the assembly.

"There he is!" yelled someone. "It can't be," said another, "where's his cane?"

"I am sure it's Wilson," said another. "See his eyeglasses and look at his profile!"

By this time the whisper ran over the crowd that Mr. Wilson was in the stand, and thousands craned their necks to see if the great figure could possibly be the man who was at the moment retiring from the Presidency.

LONDON PRESS CONFERENCE
LATES HARDING ON SPEECH
GOOD WILL OFFERED

BY A. P. NIGHTINGALE
LONDON, March 10

LONDON, March 4.—President Harding and his inaugural party are the subjects of congratulatory messages and good will in the English press this morning. The papers show great interest in the attitude of the United States toward the League of Nations.

Harding is a man who is being inter-trusted to make good use of the great power.
The Morning Post expressed belief that with the inauguration of Mr. Harding, the outlook for the present and future relations between the United States and Great Britain were never more pleasant or helpful.

The Post ends in Mr. Harding's policy of "noninvolvement" in European affairs a natural maintenance of the principle on which the American Constitution is founded.

The address of Mr. Harding regarded by the Post as "a warning pronouncing the doom of the League of Nations."

It declares there can be no

The wealth of the nation is the wealth of the people. The new president, Mr. Harding, has made it his duty to ensure that the wealth of the nation is distributed fairly among all its citizens. He has taken steps to reduce the income tax and to provide relief for the unemployed. He has also taken steps to improve the education system and to support the arts and sciences.

COME TO THE END

"It is enough—perhaps too much," said Mr. Harding, "that I have been able to do for my country. I am proud of the work that has been done and I am confident that the future is bright. I am now going to the White House to begin my new duties. I will continue to work for the good of my country and for the happiness of my people."

COMPOSITE VOICE

"But to me it is but the common voice of the people," said Mr. Harding, "who have elected me to this high office. I am only a servant of the people and I will do my best to serve them. I will listen to their needs and I will work to meet them. I will be true to my oath and I will be true to my country."

Tongs Blamed for Attack on Man at Border.

BRAWLEY March 4.—Belief that Kim Wap, Chinese merchant of this city, was attacked by a member of one of the Chinese tongs, between which trouble has occurred on the Coast recently, became stronger today when further unsuccessful attempts were made to solve the mystery of the attack on the Chinese several days ago.

Kim Wap was found unconscious in a small room back of his store Wednesday after lying there in a semiconscious condition for two days. No evidence of robbery was found by the police, everything in the store, including the money in a cash box, being undisturbed. Every attempt in the past three days to get other Chinese to furnish information, has been futile, all of them refusing to enter the building or to act as interpreter in conversing with Kim Wap.

According to the monthly summary of business conditions issued yesterday by the public service department of the Merchants' National Bank, food staples show a slight decline in a few particulars over the preceding month and material is still scarce.

Eggs show the greatest reaction, averaging 4 1/2 cents per dozen, as compared with 50 1/2 cents in January. A year ago the average price was 43 cents. Milk declined 2 cents a quart, and sirloin steak 2 1/2 cents per pound. Here is the result of the bank's tabulation:

ROOSEVELT RETIRED.

Some Englishmen Have Quicker Ideas of American History.

English ignorance of American matters used to be so dense as to provide frequent topics for our commentators. But in recent years they have been getting more enlightened. Occasionally, however, some Valuable Discovery. More than 100 per cent increase in the output of electroplating vats is gained by the use of a new method of English metallurgist. The method of applying the new process, as used at Sheffield in silverplating is merely to add a small quantity of carbonate to the plating bath, instead of neutralizing that already present by introducing barium carbonate. The method is simple in practice. The silver deposit obtained the new way is declared

Working to Strike.
The lamps in a certain Bavarian town have not been lit for a whole year now, to save coal. The lamp-keepers, however, have been kept at their posts. But, following the fashion, they struck the other day for higher pay, on the pretext of striking work when they had no work to do being pointed out to them they consulted together and resolved to begin fighting the lamps. That would cost money, they argued.—(London Morning Post.

INAUGURATION "LET'S GO!" SIGNAL TO BUSINESS.

Republican Era Greeted With Immense Enthusiasm by Local Financial, Mercantile and Industrial Chiefs.

The inauguration yesterday of President Harding and the advent of an era of Republicanism after years of business harassment and uncertainty under the Democratic regime were hailed by Los Angeles leaders in every line of endeavor as the "Let's Go!" signal. To the predictions of an early restoration of a full measure of prosperity there was not a dissenting voice, and even rock-ribbed Democrats admitted they feel more hopeful now than they have for years.

Members of the motion-picture industry are particularly optimistic over the change of administration. This business has suffered more, perhaps, in recent months than has any other because of the retrenchment of Wall Street. Large factors in the industry yesterday heaved deep sighs of relief and in unison uttered the words, "Now we can go ahead."

The cry in every line of business, whether mercantile, producing, or financial was "Let's go!" All felt that they had been held in leash by their fear of the uncertainty of conditions. But with the new President they know that for four years at least, they will be on bedrock with little danger of straying into quicksand.

GOOD TIMES AHEAD.

The situation as it exists in Los Angeles was ably summed up by H. Rice, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. He spoke of the sentiment of the majority of the business men here. In speaking of the "Let's go" spirit, he said:

"Good times are now ahead of us. Prosperity is at our door. We are headed toward prewar conditions, and with a good deal, the Republican administration, under us. Business men are well pleased with President Harding's selections for his Cabinet, and by the caliber of men he has chosen we know that the means business is going to have there are no big money influences to overcome, so here we will be among the first to see the dawn of the new era."

LARGEST SHIP IS IN OUR HARBOR.

Huge Steamer Hawkeye State Reaches Innermost Dock.

Port Passes Successfully its Most Strenuous Test.

Golden State Due Today; Big Welcome is Prepared.

Los Angeles Harbor yesterday passed successfully the most strenuous test it was ever put to when the almost 22,000-ton liner Hawkeye State navigated the inner harbor to the farthest-in dock at Pier A. She is the largest steamer that ever entered the harbor and the largest that ever passed through the Panama Canal, having a slightly greater tonnage than the Army transport Mount Vernon.

Hundreds of visitors from all parts of Southern California extended an enthusiastic greeting to the liner as she tied up at Pier A at 2 a. m. The opening feature of the welcome, staged as the vessel edged into the dock, was a shower of California oranges tossed to the Hawkeye State's passengers by members of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

"Any vessel that can pass through the Panama Canal can proceed to the innermost dock of Los Angeles Harbor in perfect safety," said Capt. Charles Peterson, master of the steamer.

MAN HUNT IS MORE FOLK ARE PAYING TAXES HERE.

Officers Catch Crowd of Nine and Find "Jackass" Brandy During Raid.

While searching for a check forer or suspect last night, Detectives McCarron, Reed and Taylor traced their man to a mysterious house at Alcazar and Mulholland streets and when they raided the place they captured not only their suspect, but also a still in operation, fourteen barrels of "jackass" brandy and seven men and one woman, whom they arrested on charges of violation of the Volstead Act.

The forger suspect, Elmo O'Connor, was wanted to answer for the alleged forgery of a $25 check, which he is charged with having cashed on W. J. Bowers of 2235 East Fourth street, in payment of a grocery bill. After the officers broke into the house to which they had traced him, they found three shotguns, loaded, placed at the door ready for action.

MAIL BANDITS MAY HAVE LOOT TOTALING MILLION.

Hundred Thousand in Liberty Bonds and Cash Known to be in Booty; Clues to Route Are Found.

Cash, Liberty Bonds and coupons totaling more than $100,000 were listed by postal officials yesterday as part of the loot of the daring bandits who held up and robbed a mail truck here Thursday night. Negotiable and nonnegotiable securities believed to have been in the twelve stolen pouches of registered mail may bring the loss to more than $1,000,000. More than $750,000 in checks were left by the bandits in the debris found yesterday morning near Conrad and Parmelee streets, just a few blocks south of Florence avenue and west of Compton avenue.

While this list was being compiled in the Federal Building, Postoffice Inspector Walter M. Cookson, in charge of the Los Angeles district, was directing a search throughout Southern California and along the Mexican border for the three or four men who are now believed to have headed for San Diego a few hours after they finished rifling the letters and packages in the big mail pouches.

The first definite clue as to the route taken by the bandits came shortly after George Hoyte, the man who found the rifled mail, communicated with the postoffice authorities. The information came from an attendant at the A. J. Night and Day Garage in Santa Ana. The man said that a closed Dodge automobile, with several men in it, stopped in the garage about 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning. One man got out, purchased gasoline, oil and tires, and the description of the man, tall, dark, with a mustache, was paid for them in cash. The automobile was said to be the same, although no numbers were obtained, and the description of the man, tall, dark, with a mustache, was paid for them in cash. WORKMANLIKE JOB.

That the bandits are professionals, who laid their plans carefully, is the opinion of Mr. Cookson and the other postal authorities. The robbery here had the name of the bandits at First and Alameda streets, where the truck was held up, and the fact that they did not examine the packages of mail, but confined their attention to the letters and smaller packages, shows that they knew approximately what would be in the mail.

No guesswork now—every Tillamook Cheese is branded!

For the past twenty-five years, cheese has been made at Tillamook. About twelve years ago, the most progressive dairymen in this little valley banded together to make cheese that has since become famous up and down the Pacific Coast.

For years, people have recognized the quality of Tillamook cheese, but found it difficult to make sure they were getting the genuine.

Now, there's no guesswork. Every pound of this finest cheese is branded. Every slice bears the name—Tillamook. Look for Tillamook on the label if you want to buy the best cheese it is possible to produce.

Made by the Tillamook Creamery Association, Tillamook, Oregon.

LEASE PROFFER IS AGAIN MADE.

Bullock's Willing to Pay City Sizable Yearly Rental.

Reiterates Stand Regarding St. Vincent's Place.

City Attorney Sees Offer as Augur of Agreement.

To place on record for consideration its long-standing offer to pay for any rights the city has to sell for the use of space over St. Vincent's Place, Bullock's yesterday filed with Mayor Snyder and the City Council a communication stating its willingness to pay $5370 annually to the city if a lease arrangement can be entered into for the maintaining of the connecting structure over the blind alley. The suggested life of the lease or other arrangement is thirty-four years.

"The communication from Bullock's," said City Attorney Stephens last evening, "possibly paves the way for an agreement which will meet the points of view of all parties. If the City Council and Bullock's can get together on a practical proposition for the store's paying annually a sum to the city, we can draw up an agreement which, while it will not have the absolute binding force of a contract, will be an instrument morally binding on both sides and one which neither side would desire, for its own interests, to cancel, unless, of course, conditions at St. Vincent's Place as regards the use of the place as an alley should change from what they are today."

ALWAYS WAS READY. In reviewing the proceedings in 1919 leading up to the passing of an ordinance permitting the erection of the structure at St. Vincent's Place to connect the two parts of the establishment, the letter from Bullock's says:

"Bullock's was then, is now and always has been, ready, able and willing to pay for anything of value which it may receive from the city, but it has always been advised and believed, and is now advised and believed, that so long as it occupies and controls the abutting property it is entitled to all rights and privileges in the alley which can be exercised without interfering with the city's easement therein for alley purposes, subject only to the reasonable regulations of the city."

"Notwithstanding these facts, objection is now being made to the use of this privilege by Bullock's without compensation to the city; therefore, and Bullock's understands that, at the request of the Council, the Los Angeles Realty Board has appraised the rental value of the space occupied by this structure at $5370 per year."

"Bullock's also understands that the city of Chicago, under similar circumstances, has made leases for like privileges at a fixed rental; and it is possible that some way can be devised in which the city of Los Angeles can receive the value of the space in St. Vincent's Place which is occupied by the structure above referred to, at a fixed rental."

"If a way can be found whereby the city of Los Angeles can and will enter into a lease or other contract with Bullock's for the privilege of maintaining a structure as described in St. Vincent's Place above described, for the term of about thirty-four years, ending June 30, 1954, at a yearly rental of $5370, Bullock's hereby offers and agrees to enter into such a lease or contract and to pay such yearly rental to the city of Los Angeles. The term of thirty-four years is suggested because Bullock's lease on the property on the east side of St. Vincent's Place will expire on June 30, 1954."

"Respectfully submitted, BULLOCK'S."

"By J. G. Bullock."

The communication will come before the City Council next Monday morning.

Mayor Snyder declined to comment on the communication from Bullock's, because, he said, the matter is before the courts.

"FAIR AND SQUARE."

President Workman of the City Council said:

"I believe that the offer of Bullock's is another example of the fair, square manner in which Bullock's has proceeded ever since Bullock's first came before the City Council in 1919 and asked permission to connect its building."

"Bullock's has always stood ready to pay for any rights which the city had to sell and now their offer is part of the records in the case. The City Council will doubtless refer the matter to the City Attorney for an opinion, and if a practical method can be worked out whereby the city and Bullock's can proceed to further definitely establish the privileges of Bullock's at St. Vincent's Place and at the same time receive payment for the value of the space, I am certain the Council will consider the matter carefully."

Find Policeman Tried to Assault Helpless Woman

After deliberating since 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, a jury in Judge McCormick's court at 5 p.m. found James M. Norrington, a police officer, guilty of an attempt to assault Mrs. Mary Letcher. Norrington will be sentenced Monday. Mrs. Letcher testified that she returned late one night from Long Beach and found that the street cars had stopped running. She saw Norrington, who was in uniform, and asked about the cars. He said he was just going off duty and offered to drive her home. Instead of taking her home, she said, he drove her to a lonely part of Wilshire Boulevard and tried to force his attentions upon her. She was ill, she said, and had not much strength to fight him. She managed to take off his police badge and through this he was identified. Norrington denied the charge and set up an alibi. He was prosecuted by Dep. Dist. Atty. Randall.

CHARGES UNION DROVE HIM OUT.

Garment Worker Not Held in Deadly Weapon Case.

Says He Was Hounded Out of City, Then Came Back.

Last Job After Job as Soon as Delegate Called.

Assaulted prosecution by local union of Morris Weingarten, a garment worker, came to the surface yesterday in Justice Forbes' court when Weingarten was freed after a hearing on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon upon Louis Clark, a union garment worker. The case was prosecuted by Deputy Attorney Van Cott and was dismissed because of insufficient evidence.

Julia Frankel, defense attorney, brought out testimony indicating that Weingarten, formerly a union worker, left the International Garment Workers Union three years ago because he did not like the union's methods. The defendant asserted that he was "hounded out of the city by the activities of a delegate of the union," who is said to have called every shop where he worked, and before he was discharged. Dismissed, he said, he went to San Francisco and the same thing happened there. Then he returned here and met with the same resistance.

On the night of the affair that led to his arrest, he visited the union headquarters at 125 1-2 South Spring street to protest against the union's treatment of him. He met with resistance, and was told, "Get out of here. Weingarten carried a big gun with him, was also not substantiated.

TOLD HER TO GO HOME TO MAMMA

Featured in a Drama of a Blonde and a Delayed Play.

Mrs. Dorothy M. Carroll (left), Attorney Utley and Mrs. Catherine Willett. The latter is Mrs. Carroll's mother and was caught by the photographer just as she was rushing forward to screen her daughter's face from view with a hat.

MRS. DOROTHY M. CARROLL, hurried into Judge Summerfield's court yesterday morning, and hurried out again, ten minutes later, as a single woman, all because of a story she told of an enforced trip home and one blonde too many.

According to Mrs. Carroll's testimony, her husband, Dean M. Carroll, handed her a ticket in San Francisco, put her on a train, and told her to "go back to mamma" in Los Angeles, saying he would not take care of her any longer.

After she arrived in Los Angeles, Mrs. Carroll said that she wrote her husband, asking him to come back to her. His reply was: "I received your letter a few days back. I want you to understand this is final, and you should realize now that I will not live with you again. I don't care for you. Don't bother me any more."

STUDENTS SEEN IN PANTOMIME.

Friday Morning Club Enjoys "The Ragged Princess."

Tributes Paid to Memory of Former Treasurer.

Luncheon Talks Cover Range of Distant Lands.

BY MYRA NEE.
If all the thrills of childhood's fairy romances were combined in one for pleasure, if all the covers of all the nursery books were united in one gay whole for color and charm, the result to those appreciative of youth might give the impression conveyed by the lovely costume pantomime, "The Ragged Princess," presented yesterday before the Friday Morning Club. It was the first appearance of students from the University of California, southern branch, in such a play. Mrs. O. Shepard Barnum introduced the group of young girls who took part. Under the direction of Louise Plunkett, instructor in the department of fine arts at the university, the pantomime was given with the following taking the principal parts: Grace Haynes, Effie Hillberry, Thya Cox, Clara Bachelder, Mrs. Judith Howard, Helen Catlin, Thirza Stewart, Audrey Foussette, and Barbara Evans. The girls are all students of art and line and color. Acting was only an incidental with them, but the production was one of merit in its quiet grace.

GARBAGE PLANT MAY BE CLOSED.

Reduction Company Says It Can't Go On; City Council Expects No Crisis.

The Pacific Reduction Company, which disposes of all the city's garbage, reported to the City Council yesterday that unless the municipality takes immediate steps to dispose of the plant, the company may be forced to cease operations next Thursday because financially unable to carry out its contract with the city under present prices. The Councilmen refused to become agitated over the company's troubles, believing that a way out of the difficulty will be found, either by new interests taking over the Pacific Reduction Company's contract and plant or by the entry into the field of a new organization, which is expected to make the city an offer at once for handling garbage.

First of her seven years as treasurer Mrs. Randall Hutchinson spoke of her as a coworker and Mrs. Barnum spoke of her as a friend.
The luncheon speakers were: Dr. John A. Comstock, assistant curator of the Southwest Museum, whose subject was "The Mission Indians"; William A. Brian, former teacher of history and geology in the Hawaiian Islands, who told of the strange island of Juan Fernandez off the coast of Chile, made famous by De Foe's "Robinson Crusoe"; and Miss Mabel Farrington, speaking for the Near East relief.
Other guests of honor included Mrs. Gardner Coville, president of the Iowa Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Homer Miller, also of the Iowa Federation, and Mrs. Judith Evans Coville, past president of the club when Mrs. Potter served the

The Tremendous Problems That Face Harding

"Of all the Presidents who succeeded war Presidents, Mr. Harding will face the most appalling mess," according to the New York Herald (Ind. Rep.), while the New York Nation avers that "with the single exception of Lincoln, probably no President in our national history has taken office with as pressing a burden of unsolved questions." Mr. Harding "must meet and overcome obstacles greater than ever Roosevelt surmounted," says the Newark News, which assures him "he need never fear that history will tint his administration as drab."

While the domestic problems of the incoming President are indeed formidable, peculiarly baffling and fateful, journalistic observers agree, are the problems of foreign policy that confront him. Europe, remarks the Outlook, turns to America "with mingled envy, fear, and hope," and "it is for the Republican Administration to justify that hope with assistance based upon an understanding of reality, and to sweep aside that fear and envy with justice and good will." The Providence Evening Bulletin (Ind.) recalls with approval Mr. Harding's Armistice-day speech at Brownsville in which he thus defined our foreign policy: "We choose no aloofness, we shirk no obligations, we forsake no friends, but we build on nationality, and we do not mean to surrender it."

In the leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week, March 5th, there is a careful presentation and explanation of the many problems that will confront President Harding both at home and abroad, together with opinions of leading newspapers of all political persuasions regarding them.

MISS CAMERON IS GOLF CHAMP.

Victor-Plays at the Very Top of Her Game.

Is Once More Equal to a Great Emergency.

BY RAY CHAPMAN.

(SPECIAL DISPATCH.)

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.

Miss Margaret Cameron, Peg of An-hamsdale, to her friends on the links, packed her suit case tonight on route for Del Monte with the Northern California women's championship trophy encased therein. Miss Cameron can now compare notes with her colleagues in the South, Norman

MacBeth, concerning the southerners' successful invasion.

Miss Cameron won the championship by defeating Mrs. Robert A.

Shaw, of the Berkeley Country Club, who, for the third or fourth time, finds herself in the honorable, but rather tedious position of runner-up. But Mrs. Shaw today found Miss

Cameron quite at the top of her game and by this time thoroughly familiar with the distances and hazards of the San Francisco Golf and Country

Club.

STARTS WELL.

The lady from Berkeley started promptly, halving the first hole with the young Southern Californian in par 4, and then winning the second with a faultlessly played par 4.

Both players turned up three putts on the third green and divided. Miss Cameron leveled the tally by holding a twelve-foot putt for a par 3 on the fourth and then making a nifty stroke by the fifth hole to win the match. The next four holes in 1 over and taking the match with a final score of 4 and 3. Miss Cameron was out in 44, the best medal score made for the first nine holes in the tournament, and a very fine exhibition with the exception of the seven on the second.

IS BUNKERED.

Miss Cameron was twice bunkered on the tenth and Mrs. Shaw got back to the hole. Miss Cameron was again bunkered on the eleventh, hitting her tee shot up to the fence on the height, but getting out with a fine recovery—an emergency to which this young player is generally equal.

Mrs. Shaw missed a five-foot putt for another birdie.

Mrs. Shaw, however, played a beautiful shot out of the trap from the bunker, and then followed by a pitch over the redan, which won her the hole. The thirteenth also went to the lady, who was now only two strokes down and 5 to play, which, according to ancient superstition, is a very favorable position.

WAS WEARY.

But at the point of the match

Mrs. Shaw seemed weary, while Miss

Cameron was as fresh and fearless as ever. Nevertheless, Mrs. Shaw would have had a half at the fourteenth, but took three putts on the green. Miss Cameron, unmarked, a long tee-shot from the green, fol-

GOING CRAZY AT PINEHURST.

(SPECIAL DISPATCH.)

PINEHURST (N. C.) March 4.

Holes-in-one shots are all the rage at Pinehurst. George S.

Verbeke of the Oak Park

Club, Chicago, achieved the fourth ace this week when he sank his maulie for the 113-yard eleventh on the

No. 1 course this afternoon.

It was during a match with

A. M. Stoddard of Wyke.

Pinehurst's new record of four aces in a single week has probably never been equaled elsewhere. The average of one-shotters made in a season here is about three and three years ago, only a single ace was achieved during the entire winter.

Redi-Cuts to Take on the Rosevale Nine.

All is set for the championship game of the Managers' Association, between the Pacific Redi-Cuts and the Rosevale Athletics, who have won their way into the finals by some hard consistent ball. Rosevale has topped the long end of every game and the Redi-Cuts have dropped but one game, and that by a 1 to 0 score.

The Rosevale crew knocked the Van Nuys gang off the Christmas tree on Sunday last when they were not expected to look in, and massed

a bunch of runs off Rappa, who did great service for class B professional team.

They will go up against as nifty

a chucker in Al Miller, the crooked arm, who was handed a nifty piece of paper by the Enlist team of the Western Association for this year's work. Miller and MacKay, who cuts them in for the local aggregation, are both products of the local game. The game will be played tomorrow, Carrol Park, between second street and Long Beach ave-nu.

BIKE RACES PROMISE SOME TALL ACTIVITY.

"SPRINT AND SPLIT EVERY MINUTE" IS SLOGAN FOR TOMORROW'S EVENTS.

With Tom Mire's "Masked Marvel," Harrison Cassell's silk uniformed "Montenorency" French,

Ralph De Palma's nephew, Peter,

"Bobby" Arbuckle's brother, Clyde,

Frank Garbutt's prize sprinter,

Harley, and the hostess, Mrs. W.

Shaw, who is the only woman competitor, will be the main attraction of the event. The races will be held at the new Hill and Washington streets stadium, biking appears to be in for a big day.

"A sprint or a split every minute" is the slogan adopted by the managers, and a brace of events, calculated to aid in bringing about one or the other has been carded. Handicap, lap races, team handicaps and short distance scratch races make up the program.

Charles Keppen, John De Palma and the other members of the press have refused to take their race seats. It is said they plan to be in the match, for nearly all the box seats have been sold to club mem-

CLASH ON THE SPEEDY OVAL.

Oxy and Pomona Brown Will Mingle Today.

Sagehens Are Powerful Favorites with Fans.

U.S.C. and Redlands Are Also Billed for a Tilt.

This is the big day when Occidental and Pomona mingle on the speedy clay oval of Patterson Field,

Earle Rock. Occidental-Pomona track meets may not be the biggest thing in the lives of the majority of our population, but to the students and alumni of the two institutions

the annual meetings between them are all-important.

The mere fact that the Sagehens are powerful favorites to wallop the Tigers means nothing whatsoever and the competition is certain to be red hot in numerous events.

The Pomona aggregation confidently expects to capture the place with the possible exception of the pole vault. The Tigers are inclined to dispute the 100-yard dash, 440-yard dash, two-mile and broad jump.

Excellent time should be made in several of the races as the Occidental track is lightning fast and the athletes are all in good condition.

The Pomona aggregation, to make

Arnold of Pomona, run a terrible century to beat him. Condit and Martin are expected to make fastest of Pomona step a rapid quarter-mile in the world, in the

VERNON TEAM NOW INTACT.

All Players but Murphy Report; Fisher Will Not Play in Minneapolis.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

When Walter Smallwood checked

a new record probably was established for alibi reporting.

Hughie High beat Smallwood in by a couple of jumps, which leaves

"Spud" Murphy, the only member of the team still outside the Tiger township. "Spud" would have been here if this had not become believed up in his transportation.

READY FOR DUTY.

Thus, every hand, with the one exception noted, is ready for spring training. The season has not yet been in progress.

A rule they are dribbling in for two weeks of a month, and frequently some of them are not to be found in uniform until after the season

ANGELUS High School students have enlisted to aid in the campaign for $100,000 to build a home for the disabled veterans of the World War. They will take an active part in the sale of the miniature bonds of the Liberty Loan drive, which is being conducted by the Los Angeles chapter of the American Legion. The students are being trained by their teachers in the proper handling of the miniature bonds, which are being sold in the city. TENNIS SEASON AT CALTEK UNDER WAY.

The tennis season at Caltech is well under way and matches with two colleges have already been staged. Redlands was taken into camp by a score of 7-6, and last Saturday the Southern Branch fell victims by the same shutout score. A regular schedule has been arranged between the conference colleges, and from present indications the big fight for first honors should be between Tech and Pomona, as was the case last year. The Engineers meet Pomona at Claremont next Saturday.

Of last year's team, which Pomona beat, 4-3, in the final for the title, three letter men are again playing this year. Herndon, last year's first man, has deserted Tech for Stanford, but his loss has in a large measure been filled by two freshmen sharks of last year, who are eligible for intercollegiate competition this year.

KRAMER TO TRY AT PRO BALL. "Bogie" Kramer, first catcher on the Manual Arts baseball team in 1919, leaves for Little Rock, Ark., today to take a whirl at professional ball. Kramer has been playing winter league stuff on various teams hereabouts, and has done so well that the wise ones have no doubt he will make good. He is a sturdy hitter, batting .400 in the high school ranks, and continuing the good work on the semipro teams. He is one man who has no trouble in finding Rough, pitching ace of the Alexander Giants colored team.

MURPHY'S VS. ONTARIO. A fast independent semipro ball game is carded for tomorrow, when the Gene Murphy knock 'em dead nine innings to Ontario and plays the Ontario club. Both teams played great ball during the season of the Managers' Association, which closed last Sunday.

PROTECTED

Time or the Elements will never mar the handsome exterior of this artistic Wilshire home. The walls are plastered over Buttonlath, the lathing that prevents checking and plaster cracks.

Most builders have found, too, that Buttonlath lowers the labor costs, saves plaster and speeds up construction. In addition, Buttonlath is a tested fire-retardant, moisture proof and a perfect sound deadener.

The thousands of structures of all types and sizes, constructed of Buttonlath, are evidence of its durable quality.

Just tell your architect or builder—or order it direct from any lumber or building material dealer. Specify it by name—ask for BUTTONLATH.
